Teachers of State to Open Three Day Convention Today

Educators From All Parts of State to Attend Annual Meeting

Hotels Crowded

Board of Trustees Hold Meeting of That Body Wednesday

LITTLE ROCK, Nov. 13.—The sixty-second annual convention of the Arkansas Educational Association will open today for a three-day session, with approximately half of the state's 8,000 teachers in attendance.

The advance guard of several hundred superintendents, principals and teachers began arriving yesterday, and every train last night brought additional visitors. The big movement toward Little Rock will begin today, and it is expected that several thousand teachers will be on hand for the first general session at the High School auditorium at 8 o'clock.

Most of the public schools in the state recessed yesterday until Monday, but in several counties in the central part of the state classes will be conducted today. Little Rock public schools will recess at noon today until Monday.

The Board of Trustees of the association held its annual business meeting at the Little Rock School Board office last night.

H. L. Lambert, executive secretary of the association, submitted his annual financial report, which was approved. The board discussed matters concerning the operation of the association and transacted routine business.

The Board of Trustees is composed of B. W. Torreyson, Conway, chairman; L. L. Relsay, Little Rock, secretary; R. C. Hall, Little Rock; J. J. Doyle, Lonoke; C. M. Hirst, president of the association, ex-officio; Miss Opal Albright, corresponding secretary; H. L. McAlister and D. C. Hastings.

Council Meets Today

This morning was devoted to the meeting of the Council of Education, composed of 350 teachers, which will convene at 9 a. m. in the ballroom of the Hotel Marion. This body will nominate officers and decide upon measures to be presented at the business meeting to be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow in the auditorium of the high school.

The first general session will be held at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium with R. C. Hall, superintendent of Little Rock public schools, presiding. This session will feature the address of the president, C. M. Hirst, and talks by Dr. W. D. Cocking, professor of school administration, Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn., and Dr. George D. Storer, Columbia University, New York city.

Sectional meetings are scheduled for 2 p. m., and with the exception of the joint meeting of Department of Rural Education and Department of Superintendence, which will be held in the auditorium of the North Little Rock High School, Twenty-second and Main streets.

College Department

The College Department, with Dr. Charles D. Johnson, president of Ouachita College, as chairman, and Dr. E. B. Tucker, president of Arkansas College, as secretary, will meet in room 314, at the high school, Dr. H. G. Bennett, president of Oklahoma A. & M. College, will give a 30-minute talk on "Present Trends in College Education." C. A. Overstreet, president of the Magnolia A. & M. College, will (Continued On Page Three)

SHREVEPORT, La., Nov. 13.—(AP)—Blood smeared shirts left by a person wearing tennis shoes furnished the clue today to solution of the slaying of Charles Warren Turner, 73-year-old former convict, who was beaten and injured fatally with a hammer in his lonely cabin on the Mansfield road near here.

They Voted for This Churchman

A churchman became a legislator when the final election returns were tabulated in New Hampshire. The Rev. Napoleon Gilbert, above, pastor of the Holy Rosary church, Hooksett, N. H., had objected to his nomination for the state legislature, but allowed his name on the ballots because he believed he had no chance of election. He was mistaken, however, and proved an easy winner.

It's Up to the Leaders

THE American business executive probably faces one of the greatest tests of his career just at present. It is to him, in the last analysis, that the nation is looking for leadership to end the present business depression. Federal, state and city governments may do what they can, but business itself must provide the wisdom and the skill to get industry back on its feet if prosperity is to return.

This viewpoint is ably presented in a speech recently delivered at Atlanta by F. B. Nichols, managing editor of the Capper Farm Press. Pointing out that "in the future there is going to be more hard work and fewer conferences around the 19th hole of the golf course," Mr. Nichols goes on:

"Changes which are now taking place in the industrial organizations of this country indicate clearly the intention of the ownership to scrap part of the alleged executive talent along with obsolete machinery. The men who will be running the business of the nation in the golden years which are ahead will be those individuals with the mental and physical strength to aid in the recovery now."

As Mr. Nichols remarks, the productive capacity of the country has not suffered. Industry is still able to pour out great floods of goods, just as it was in the boom times of 1929. Agriculture, depressed by falling prices, is likewise as productive as ever. The initiative and enterprise of the people as a whole are as great as ever. Only the right leadership is needed.

Looked at from this angle, the situation becomes more encouraging. If there is one kind of man that America seems peculiarly able to produce it is the business genius. The land's best brains, for three-quarters of a century, have gone into commerce and industry. That situation is still unchanged.

Can anyone doubt, then, that the nation as a whole will emerge from the current depression in better shape than ever before? Incompetence and inefficiency will have been weeded out of the front offices. American business men will be squared away to prove what they have so often prided before—that they can solve just about any problem that can confront them.

The Democratic Pledge

THE situation which will probably exist in the next congress, in which party strength almost equally balanced, presents conflicting prospects to the Democratic party.

Looking toward 1932 and the presidential election, a minority party so placed might take advantage of the situation to seek to bring about the complete confusion and discredit of the administration. It would have precedent for such action.

From another angle it might look upon the situation as affording it an opportunity to enhance its own prestige and encourage public confidence in it by using its influence in a constructive, rather than an obstructive, manner.

Looking at things from a broader viewpoint, it might hold its responsibility to the country paramount to all other considerations.

The Democratic leaders who have committed their party to such a course because of the serious problems confronting the country, and who have pledged co-operation with the Republicans in constructive efforts, have chosen the wise plan of action. Whether or not such a course will strengthen the party's chances in 1932 is of far less importance than our national well-being.

Tasker H. Bliss

TASKER H. BLISS won recognition as one of America's finest soldier-statesmen.

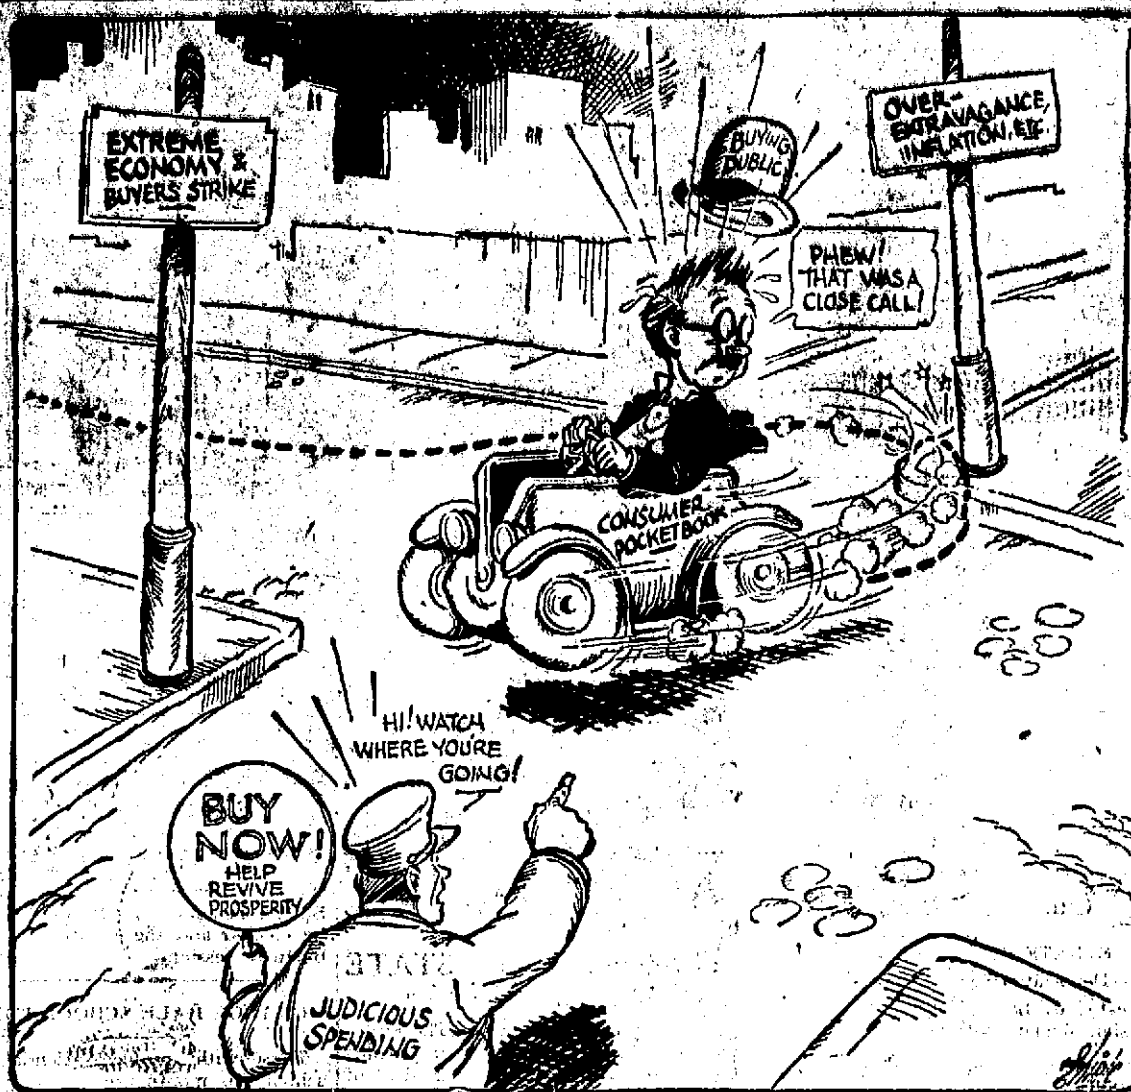

The veteran soldier died three years after retiring from active military life, which, because of his peculiar value to his country in a time of emergency was extended ten years beyond the usual limits.

General Bliss, born in 1853, graduated from West Point and entered the army in 1875. His career covered Indian campaigns in the west, the Spanish-American war, Philippine insurrection, Porto Rican campaign, and the Mexican Border trouble before the World war gave the country the benefit of his long years of experience and trained ability. He was thoroughly the soldier, yet he combined with his military qualities an unusual degree of ability as a statesman, and in both capacities served his country well.—Jonesboro Evening Sun.

A nature lover comments that grouse used to have a chance when hunters used old fashioned shot guns, but that with the modern repeating pump guns "misses are few and far between." Which will be surprising news to about 99.9 per cent of those who hunt grouse.

Luis and Prestes, who until the recent revolution were, respectively, president and vice president of Brazil, are to be deported. If the United States were to adopt the policy of getting rid of unsuccessful candidates or ousted office holders, it would boom business for steamship companies.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — The election campaign is over, but you're going to keep right on hearing about the tariff, which seems bound to cause a lot more trouble.

The public hearings now in progress before the tariff commission, operating under the flexible provision of the Hawley-Smoot act, are the first in a series of 62 or more scheduled already ordered and investigated by the commission.

Just what will actually be done toward carrying out President Hoover's promise of revision under the flexible provision is a matter of considerable speculation here. Despite promises of speed and seeming evidence of earnest determination, the commission will "take considerable surprise" in some quarters if it ever does much of anything.

Tariff critics have held that the commission is stacked in favor of the high rates in the Hawley-Smoot law and hence is unlikely to make any revisions of importance. They also insist on "the basis of eight years' experience with the flexible provision of the previous act—which provided essentially the same machinery as the Hawley-Smoot flexible provision—the commission is not geared to make thorough investigations and quick changes.

In the hands of the Democrats, the tariff unquestionably became a real campaign issue. The opposition tried to make it appear that the "Grundys act" had made an important contribution to depression and unemployment. President Hoover, in signing the bill, did the best he could to escape onus by asserting an obvious need for revisions.

Today, the tariff commission is distinctly a Hoover commission. Chairman Henry P. Fletcher is Hoover's personal choice and, of course, responsive to Hoover's wishes on matters of policy. And the commission itself is made up of men who have been in positions to mitigate the unpopularity of the act and the opposition to the present act.

Under the circumstances, considerable comment was inspired when the president waited the full 90 days allowed by the law before appointing the commission. Even then there was still a member missing in the lineup. "This didn't seem to show any great desire for speed on the part of the administration."

And as for the scores of requests for investigations which were received during that period, no work was begun on them. They were merely filed. Of course it took the commission a month to get organized.

Hoover, Fletcher and Senator Smoot say the machinery will function adequately. But the tariff critics, considering the delay of more than four months before hearings began, the personnel of the commission and what they call the machinery's inadequacy, press to "hold little hope." Previously public hearings have been delayed from six months to two years while the commission's investigators made detailed studies of production costs at home and abroad.

Early starts with the hearings, Fletcher says, will hasten the commission's reports to the president, who may either put the recommendations into effect or ignore them. Thus interest centers on the speed with which the commission completes investigations and makes the reports.

Another fight in Congress in connection with the tariff is expected over Mr. Hoover's reappointment of Edgar B. Broadard of Utah to the commission. Something probably will be said about the fact that Mr. Hoover appointed three Republicans and two Democrats, without naming a sixth until the commission had organized itself, although it was explained that the president had tried hard to find the right man.

Broadard, originally appointed as an examiner for the commission through the influence of Smoot, is charged with having been the special advocate of the beet sugar interests both as an employee and a member. Democrats have been promising strong opposition to his confirmation and the Senate may be in a mood to turn him down.

LAWRENCE, Kan., (UP)—Forty freshmen have turned out for pre-season practice in basketball at the University of Kansas. Dr. E. C. "Phog" Allen, director of athletics, and basketball coach, will organize a handball tournament as an earlier conditioner.

Tarbell Books Banned

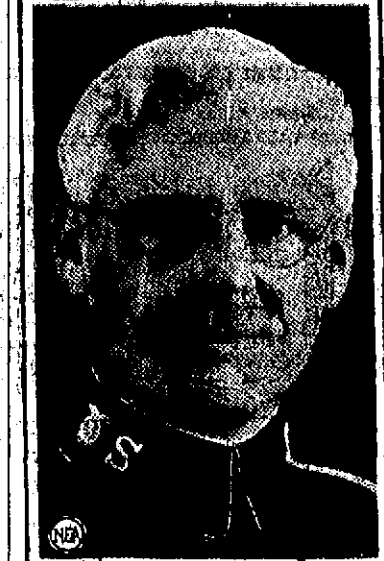

MARTINS FERRY, Ohio, (UP)—The books of Ida M. Tarbell, which had been used as class room texts of the United Presbyterian Women's Bible class here, have been banned because of the author's recently professed opposition to the prohibition laws.

Mary Garden and Gene Make Up

This photograph ought to prove that the feud between Mary Garden, opera star, and Gene Howe, editor of a newspaper at Amarillo, Texas, is ended forever. It began when Howe criticized Miss Garden's operatic performance in Amarillo a year ago, and ended the other day when he invited Miss Garden to tea at his home—where this photograph was taken. "I think he's the weirdest person I've ever met, but he's all right, and I like him," said Mary. "I've invited him to be my guest both in Chicago and France," said Mary.

"Who does that?"
"My horse."

Relief From Curse of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."
But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose. Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderly at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. John S. Gibson Drug Co. Adv.

If you are sighing for a lofty work,
If great ambitions dominate your mind,
Just watch yourself, and see you do not shrink
The common little ways of being kind.
If you are dreaming of a future goal
When, crowned with glory, men shall own your power,
Be careful that you let no struggling soul
Go by unaided in the present hour.
If you would help to make the wrong things right,
Begin at home. There lies a lifetime's toil.
Weed out your garden, fair for all men's sight,
Before you strive to till another's soil.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Cox made a business trip to Texarkana yesterday.

The Brookwood Study Club, which was to have met this week at the home of Mrs. P. H. Webb has been postponed to a later date.

Mrs. O. A. Graves accompanied by Miss Chloe Smith of Nashville left this morning for Fort Smith where they attend the State Music Teachers' Association, convening in that city
this week.

Mr. L. A. Foster and Miss Eleanor Mott will spend the week end visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Wilson in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Field have as guests, Mrs. Estelle E. Hendricks of Texarkana.

Mrs. H. A. West and Miss Hattie Anne Field spent today visiting with friends in Texarkana.

Mrs. C. R. Wilkins has returned from Camden, where she visited with her parents, and played the wedding march yesterday in the wedding of Miss Alice Lyde of that city to Mr.
Ed Horton of Monroe, La.

Mrs. Charles Haynes entertained at an informal at home yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock at her home on West Second street to meet Mrs.
Tilman Parks of Washington, D. C., and Camden, Ark., who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. White. The reception suite of the Haynes home was beautifully decorated with red random roses, the music room was attractive with a profusion of autumn foliage and chrysanthemums, while lovely pink radiance roses predominated in the dining room. The beautiful table was centered with pink roses, flanked by pink tapers in crystal holders. A most tempting salad plate with hot rolls and tea was served, with the confections in the chosen color note of pink. Mrs. Haynes was assisted in receiving and serving her guests, by Mrs. Talbot Field, Mrs. Gus Haynes, Mrs. Charles Horvey, Mrs.
J. A. Henry, Mrs. Fannie Garrett, Mrs. Dan Green, Mrs. P. A. Tharp and Miss Mary Haynes. Out of town guests other than the honoree, were Mrs. H. A. Heaton of Dallas, Tex., and Mrs. Estelle E. Hendrix of Texarkana.

children of Little Rock will arrive tonight for a few days visit with Mr.
and Mrs. W. W. Duckett.

Mrs. J. E. Baker and little daughter Kathryn Ann arrive tonight from Little Rock for a week end visit with Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Acker.

Mrs. H. A. West and Miss Hattie
Anne Field motored to Camden yesterday to attend the wedding of Miss Alice Lyde of that city to Mr. Ed
Horton of Monroe, La.

Mrs. W. H. Hutchison was hostess yesterday to the members of the Contract Wednesday Bridge Club at her home on South Elm street. Beautiful autumn leaves brightened the rooms and bridge was played from two tables with Mrs. Finley Ward winning the high score favor. Following the game, the hostess served a delicious salad plate.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Welborn have as week end guests, Mrs. Welborn's sister, Miss Minnie Glass of Hot Springs. Miss Glass is a member of the Hot Springs Public School faculty.

Jimnie Harbin, who is a student in Hendrix-Henderson College, Conway, will arrive tonight to spend the week end visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Harbin and grandmother,
Mrs. Florence Turner.

"Would you advise a young man to go into any business where he saw a good opening?"
"Yes, if he were sure the opening wouldn't get him into a hole."

MOM'N POP

THIS IS THE NIGHT OF THE BIG DANCE AND POP HAS PROMISED TO LET CHICK TAKE THE FAMILY GAS-EATER HOME.

OH, MY HEAVENS! AND IT'S ALMOST TIME FOR HIM TO GO.

I CAN'T HELP IT, SOMETHING'S GONE WRONG AND I'M STALLED OUT HERE IN HOBBIT.

UNION! WHAT A NIGHT THIS IS GOING TO BE! GOSH, IN ONE HOUR I'LL BE DOING SOME DIZZY HOPS WITH GLADYS, OUT AT THE CLUB.

A Bad Break

HEY! HEY! HERE'S WHERE CHICK BREAKS OUT INTO A TERRIFIC RUM-PUS, WHEN I TELL HIM THE BAD NEWS.

MOM, WASN'T POP GOT BACK WITH THE CAR YET?

CHICK, I DON'T KNOW WHAT YOU'RE GOING TO DO, BUT POP JUST PHONED THAT THE CAR HAD BROKEN DOWN AND HE'S STRANDED OUT IN HOBBIT.

FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE, I MIGHT HAVE KNOWN SOMETHING LIKE THIS WOULD HAPPEN! GOSH, I'M IN A TWECK OF A JACK! HERE IT'S TIME TO CALL FOR GLADYS AND HOW AM I GOING TO GET OUT TO THE DANCE? TELL ME THAT!

Architect Charges Claims

Americans Not Original

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 12.—(UP)—Contempt for "the American's self conscious fear of being himself which has led to his architectural servility," was expressed by Frank Lloyd Wright, internationally famous architect, in the first of a series of lectures at the University of Wisconsin.

Aping of the current French plan, an adoption of a new mode of planes and angles, and the construction of buildings in the image of machines constitute betrayal of the purpose of architecture, he said.

Soussa Plans Trip

CHICAGO, (UP)—Edmond Soussa of Egypt, holder of the world's amateur 18.1 balkline title and the European three-cushion and straight rail crowns, is an artist and now makes his headquarters in Paris. Soussa hopes to be able to make the trip to the United States this year to compete in the American amateur 18.2 balkline championships.

Harry Westerman Is

Wounded With Pistol

Harry Westerman, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Westerman, 509 West Sixth street, accidentally wounded himself with a pistol late yesterday. He was taken to Julia Chester hospital suffering from a bullet wound in the right side of his chest. Physicians expect him to recover, barring unexpected complications. His father, Chas. Westerman, is a well known printer and newspaper man, a member of the staff of The Star.

How to play Bridge
AUCTION or CONTRACT
by Wynne Ferguson
Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright, 1930, by Hoyle, Jr.

It is pretty good evidence that Auction Bridge is becoming the national game when the editors of the metropolitan dailies make it the subject of their editorials. Here is one that recently appeared in the New York American, under the caption "Bridge of Signals."

"Most games of cards are criticized as gambling, but bridge is coming in for condemnation because it provokes violence. Judge W. N. Gemmill goes so far as to say that married couples never should be partners. A bride of social importance had testified that she doubled a four diamond bid and lost the trick, at which her husband, who was her partner, flamed into a rage and berated her before their guests. Only a few weeks before, another couple traced the cause of their separation to the tramping by the wife of her husband's ace."

"Assuredly, bridge is for those who can control their tempers and their tongues. Players who cannot smile and turn the other cheek when snitten should stick to euchre or casino. But bridge is a wonderful school for poise and patience. Anyone who can pass through the ordeal of a tournament without an emotional outbreak ought to be able to buy Radio on margin and sleep soundly of nights."

There is a mighty lesson in card manners in that editorial, so try to profit by it.

Here are three problems in the play of the hand that will give you something to think about during the next week:

Problem No. 6

Hearts—K, 10, 3
Clubs—Q, J, 7, 2
Diamonds—A, K, Q
Spades—8, 7, 2

A Z B

Hearts—A, J
Clubs—6
Diamonds—9, 5, 4, 2
Spades—A, K, Q, 5, 4, 3

AUCTION BIDDING:
No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid two spades and all passed. A opened the king of diamonds and followed with the queen and ace. If A now led the deuce of clubs, how should Z play the hand so that he can make game against any defense?

CONTRACT BIDDING:
Z's best bid with this hand is one spade. A passes and Y should bid two clubs to give Z another chance if his hand justifies it. B will pass and Z should now bid three spades. A will pass, and Y is justified in bidding four spades. Solution in the next article.

Problem No. 7

Hearts—A, 5
Clubs—10
Diamonds—10, 2
Spades—9, 8, 7, 2

Hearts—9, 2
Clubs—A, 8
Diamonds—K, 5, 4
Spades—A, 3

There are no trumps and Z is in the lead. How can Y Z win seven of the nine tricks against any defense? Solution in the next article.

Problem No. 8

Hearts—K, 3
Clubs—A, 6, 5
Diamonds—7, 2
Spades—none

Hearts—8, 4
Clubs—Q, 8
Diamonds—K, Q, 5
Spades—none

Hearts are trumps and Z is in the lead. How can Y Z win four of the seven tricks against any defense? Solution in the next article.

Pop Goes Stanford!
FRESH things have been happening on the coast, gentlemen, where the once mighty Stanford football team coached by Pop Warner was exploded by Howard Jones' Trojans the other day like a child bursts an empty sack.

The 41 to 12 drubbing administered by Southern California was the worst defeat a team of Pop's has sustained in 30 years, as nearly as I can remember. I think it was in 1900 that one of Pop's teams at Carlsbad was belted out of the picture by Columbia, 40 to 12.

Is Pop All Wrong?
Pop may have made a few mistakes in his career. It may have been wrong for him to call the reporters and tell them before the game with U. S. C. that the team was the dumbest lot of players he ever coached, adding that only the Trojans exceeded them in intellectual bashfulness. However, he has a very salutary effect upon football players to declare them dumb or broadcast that they lack the necessary fighting qualities.

Too Darned Smart
I THINK, however, that Pop might have expanded on his remarks a little. He should have said that this year's Stanford team is composed of young men so smart that they are dumb football players. That may sound paradoxical, but it can be explained.

About three years ago Stanford passed the ruling that only 350 freshmen would be admitted annually, including the ladies. These 350 had to be from the upper ends of their classes in high school during the four years they attended high school. Stanford is now operating in the third year of that system, and, while things are going along swimmingly in the science laboratories and engineering classes, the gridiron isn't so hot.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
ZUPPKE says some of his best quarterbacks have been dumb players... but that the plays they selected clicked because the team had faith in the men who called the signals. It was Zupke who invented the huddle, which makes a football game of one hour last two hours and a half. Zupke's 1921 team used the huddle the first time. It has somewhat the same advantage as the shift, as the offense is screened until the center snaps the ball. A lot of teams use the huddle, but Rockne's quarterbacks call signals... and sometimes Frank Carideo calls, more than signals. In the game with Carnegie Tech, Carideo was calling signals, something like this: "18-41-19, hey, there, Dreshar, get out of the way!" And it upset the Tech team. Instead of wondering what the play was going to be, the Tartans were wondering whose name was going to be called next.

Stanford is improving the brain pans of a number of smart young people, no doubt, but it seems that these intellectual giants do not make good football players. It is being discovered that smart students make dumb gridiron heroes, if such can be. There are two kinds of football players, it seems. There are football players who are students, and there are students who are football players. Pop has his hands full of a squad of students who are football players. And they can't seem to make Old Pop's wizardry work. Maybe they are too imaginative.

Prize For Story Goes To Girl From Patmos

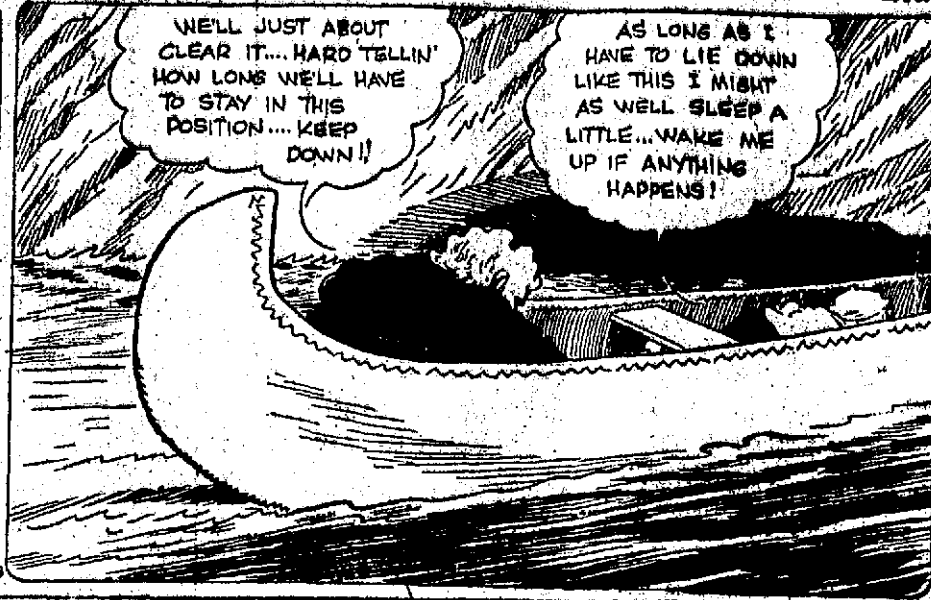

MAGNOLIA, Nov. 12.—Prizes at Magnolia A. & M. are being given for the best story written for the Press Club. The prize for the best story in the May October 4, was won by Nora Gordon, Patmos, on the story of "Homecoming." The prize for the best story in the October 18 issue of the Press was won by Ernest Graham, Magnolia, on his write-up of the Quachita-Mulderiders football game. Winners of these news stories were presented with a box of candy at assembly exercise October 22.

Era of Costly Horses Predicted in Few Years

DURHAM, N. H., Nov. 10.—(P)—Horses are likely to be higher in 1937 and 1940 than ever before, says M. Gale Eastman, farm economist at the University of New Hampshire. Development of tractors, trucks and automobiles lessened the demand for horses in recent years and prolonged the period of low prices. The end of the low price period, he says, has left few young horses in the country and as the old ones begin to disappear the whole country will join a scramble to get more.

Stamps Will Play Bobcats on Friday

LaFayette County Team Next to Last Home Game of Season

Fresh from their victory over Prescott last Tuesday, the Hope Bobcats will take on Stamps High School at Fair park Friday afternoon.

Coach Wilkins believes Hope ought to dispose of the visitors in short order, but there is danger in the fact that the locals pointed hard for the game against Prescott and may suffer from reaction; and then, it is hard for any high school team to go through two contests in one week without feeling the strain.

Hope generally wins against Stamps. The LaFayette county boys have scored an occasional victory—but on this year's showing Hope is given considerable odds to take the visitors into camp.

A good-sized crowd is expected to turn out Friday afternoon. Attendance has been good all season and Hope fans will welcome the chance to see the Bobcats in action in the next-to-the-last home game of the season. Texarkana, Ark. comes here for the final home game Thursday, November 20—and Hope goes to Nashville Thanksgiving day for the final contest of the year.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote, that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CELIA MITCHELL, 17, leaves Baltimore where she has lived with her grandmother, MARGARET ROBERTS, to join her twenty father, JORDAN MITCHELL, in New York. The parents are divorced and Mrs. Roberts is a nurse following a second marriage.

DAVID MITCHELL, 15, young nephew, photographs in love with the girl. Mitchell asks EVELYN PARSONS, beautiful widow, to introduce his daughter to the young people. Mrs. Parsons agrees, considering Celia a means to win Mitchell's attention. She soon becomes jealous of the girl and schemes to get rid of her by encouraging a romance between Celia and JORDAN, fascinating but of dubious character.

Mitchell has forbidden his daughter to see Jordan. Celia comes to New York to work for a photographic service and meets Celia. She tells him she cares for Jordan but later realizes it is Celia whom she loves.

Mrs. Parsons goes to Mitchell and tells him the girl has been meeting Celia surreptitiously. Meeting and daughter quarrel and Celia, who tells him she cares for Jordan but later realizes it is Celia whom she loves.

so unhappy I don't know what to do!"

She felt Jordan's arms go around her, holding her close.

"Don't, darling!" he begged, "Don't cry. Maybe there's some way I can help. You know I'd do anything in the world for you, dear. Please stop crying and tell me all about it."

It was some time before Celia was able to raise her head and speak coherently. The young man led her to the divan. They sat down and it seemed only natural for Jordan's arm to linger about the girl's shoulder.

His manner was comforting and tender. Celia felt the strain under which she had been suffering lessen gradually. Haltingly she told Tod about her mother's disappearance and how the search to find her seemed hopeless.

"There's something else, too," she confessed. "I can't tell you because I promised not to. Only, well, it looks as though father's going away and I won't be able to stay with Evelyn. Grandmother doesn't want me with her. I don't know what's going to happen!"

"BUT, little girl," Jordan's voice was low and vibrant, "does all this matter so terribly? Look at me, Celia. Here—let me see your eyes. Lovely eyes that were never meant for tears!"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER LIV

FOR a moment the strange numbness which was both fear and tremulous hope held Celia motionless. Then reason asserted itself. It could not be Barney Shields who was waiting for her. Barney had meant what he said.

Celia turned and walked slowly to the living room. Tod Jordan was leaning negligently against a table. He swung around, smiling, as she paused in the doorway.

"Didn't forget your promise, did you?" he greeted her.

She had not given Jordan a thought since he and Lief had left her the day before. Instead of answering Celia said, "Hello, Tod. It's nice of you to come."

He approached and took both her hands.

"So that's all the welcome I get. Just 'hello'!" He studied her face intently. "Look here, sweetheart, hasn't that headache gone yet?"

"Oh, yes. I'm all right."

"You're looking white as a sheet. Has anything happened? Tell me, Celia. What is it?"

Jordan's dark eyes were compelling, his voice sympathetic. Skillfully he dramatized the moment.

"There's nothing the matter," Celia persisted. And then, though she had endured harshness and disappointment, kindness proved too much for her. Celia suddenly clung to Tod Jordan, burying her face against his coat front.

"It's everything!" she sobbed. "Everything's wrong. Oh, Tod, I'm

He raised the girl's chin until her face was close to his. Jordan's eyes held the girl's spellbound.

"I can't go on like this," the man said harshly. "I've got to say it now. I love you, darling—love you so much that I can't do without you! Marry me, Celia! Let me take you away where you'll forget that you ever knew an unhappy moment. Will you, beloved?"

The girl had drawn away.

"Why, Tod? Do you mean that?"

"More than I ever meant anything in my life!"

"You—you want me to marry you?"

"Now. This afternoon. This very minute! Oh, my dearest!"

He caught her to him again, kissing her lips, then her cheeks and forehead. It was an instant before Celia could pull away.

"But I haven't said yes," she told him. "I don't know—I'm not sure!"

"You can't refuse!" Jordan declared. "Celia, I swear I can't live without you! You've got to marry me!"

"Do you love me so much?" the girl asked, wide-eyed.

"There aren't words enough to tell you!"

It was the bewildering climax of two days' misery. Celia had never listened to such ardor. Barney was gone and there was no one else to whom she could turn. Everyone had forsaken her but Jordan. He wanted her, insisted he needed her. Celia forgot her father's warnings about the young man.

"My car's waiting downstairs," Tod said impetuously. "We'll drive to Connecticut. Come! Get your hat, Celia!"

His eagerness was contagious. The girl sprang up.

"I won't be a minute!" she said and disappeared.

EVELYN PARSONS closed the door behind her and crossed the foyer of her apartment at shortly after five o'clock. She had lost again at bridge and was in a disagreeable humor. Traffic on the avenue had been congested and that had increased her irritability.

"Rose!" she called. "Rose, where are you?"

The maid appeared hastily.

"Did my hat come from Saks?" Evelyn demanded.

"There haven't been any packages delivered, Mrs. Parsons," Rose said. "I don't know you were expecting anything."

"You mean to say it isn't here?" Oh, of all the outrages! The girl assured me it would be sent on the early delivery! Listen—call up the store at once and say that Mrs. Parsons demands an explanation. Wait! Get the number and I'll talk to them myself."

Rose dispatched the task immediately. A moment later Evelyn Parsons was hotly engaged in conversation with a weary complaint clerk in the department store.

Evelyn insisted on talking to an executive and the clerk cheerfully transferred the call.

Stiffened and pleased with this show of her importance, Mrs. Parsons finally put down the telephone.

"Has Miss Celia gone out?" she asked indifferently.

"I believe so," Rose answered. "Mr. Jordan called and I saw her putting on her hat."

"Oh, Mr. Jordan? Then she probably won't be here for dinner. She didn't leave me any message?"

"No, ma'am."

Evelyn stood while the maid helped her out of the afternoon costume and into a slimy lounging robe.

Then for thirty minutes Mrs. Parsons relaxed completely while the maid went through the nightly beautifying process. Lotions and ointments and perfumes from expensive containers all played their part. To Evelyn this was a solemn ritual, tribute to the beauty which she worshipped.

She was to dine with friends. For the occasion Evelyn selected a purple gown of satin. She put on her pearls and two bracelets and drew a metallic wrap about her shoulders. When she was ready Rose went to the speaking tube and returned to announce that Mrs. Parsons' car was waiting. There was the sound of the luxurious silk in motion and Evelyn was gone.

It was nearly 10 o'clock when she returned. There was no one in the living room. Evelyn dropped her wrap upon a chair, suppressed a yawn and went to her desk to see if there had been any telephone messages. None were recorded.

She went down the hall and knocked at Celia's bedroom door. For an instant she listened but no sound came.

ROSE had been dismissed for the evening. Leisurely Evelyn slipped out of her gown and removed her jewels. She dozed lounging in pajamas, made herself comfortable on the chaise longue and lighted a cigarette. There was a novel on the table beside her. It was a new book which had come up for discussion at the dinner party. Mrs. Parsons had read only the first few chapters. She found the place she had left off and began to read.

She was not aware how much time had passed when she laid the volume aside. Evelyn arose and for a moment stood thoughtfully. Then she stepped into the hall and again knocked at Celia's door. There was no answer.

Cautiously Mrs. Parsons turned the knob and opened the door. Nothing about the room was displaced. Evelyn was about to switch out the lights and leave when a white envelope propped up on the desk caught her eye. There was something unusual about the envelope.

She picked it up and saw that her name was inscribed upon it. The handwriting was Celia's.

A tiny frown appeared on the woman's forehead as she drew out the note. She read:

"Dear Evelyn: This is to let you know that I am going away because I feel it will be better for all of us. Please do not try to find me and do not let father try. He will not succeed anyhow. Some day a long while from now I hope I can come back."

"Tell father I am sorry I had to happen this way but he is not to worry about me. I will be all right. Tell him I wish I could thank him for all the wonderful things he has done for me. I want to thank you too, Evelyn. And I hope you will be very happy. Good-by, Celia."

There were two blurred spots on the note which might have been caused by teardrops. Evelyn Parsons did not notice them. She stared at the sheet of paper and then hastily read it through again. The hand holding the letter dropped and Evelyn's shoulders straightened. A malicious smile played about her lips.

There was a clock on the bedside table. Its hands pointed to 11:15. Evelyn noticed the clock and her expression changed. She caught up the telephone, gave a number, and at once burst into incoherent, agonized phrases. "John," she cried, "It's Evelyn! You must come at once. Oh, I'm so frightened! I can't tell you what's happened until you get here. What? Yes. Yes. Oh, do hurry!"
